

Offshore Substations

Our experience is as solid as our solutions

Experience is essential

Practice makes perfect – and as a contender in the wind energy sector, you need a contractor that you can trust. The partnership between Bladt Industries and Semco Maritime is your guarantee for experience and high standards. Since we delivered the first offshore substation in 2002, we have added another 18 substations to our list of references – and the number continues to rise.

All this practice has made us experts in the field as we have gained significant experience and knowledge along the way - from fabricating substations and jacket structures to creating turnkey solutions and full-scale O&M services..

40 years of offshore expertise

Bladt Industries and Semco Maritime have been involved in the oil and gas offshore industry since the late 1970's. Throughout the years, we have gained solid knowledge about offshore constructions – a knowledge that we now use in offshore wind industry.

Our experienced team of project managers, welders and electrical engineers is capable of transforming design into the finished product - always making sure that every detail is closely managed to guarantee the best outcome for our clients. To us, quality and precision is everything and our client's satisfaction is crucial.

Cooperation is key

We always aim to deliver the best possible solution for our clients. Through experience, we know that the best way to deliver excellent results is by combining innovative and proven technologies while always keeping focus on functionality. We know that precision is important and we cooperate closely with our clients to ensure that the substation is delivered on time and in prime quality.
